Current Research

- Using marginal analysis to determine the likelihood of a new resource-rich country to experience a crowding out of non-resource government revenue caused by the revenue from resource. This “moral hazard” issue is common in resource rich countries.
- Econometric analysis of the role of institutions in the determinants of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) in low income countries.