CLALS LAUNCHES NEW DIGITAL ARCHIVE ON U.S.-CUBA RELATIONS

A part of the Center’s Cuba Initiative, funded by the Christopher Reynolds Foundation, this unique archive offers scholars, researchers, policymakers, and journalists interested in U.S.-Cuban relations a single point of easy access to relevant articles, laws, and reports on the full range of U.S.-Cuban issues.

From human rights to migration to environmental protection, this archive includes the best and most current resource materials available—over 160 documents in all—and will be regularly updated. At a moment when both Washington and Havana have expressed a desire to move beyond more than half a century of hostility, we hope that this archive will help to better inform the public about the interests at stake and key issues to be resolved.

RECENT CLALS PUBLICATIONS

As part of the CLALS Hemisphere in Flux Project, the Brazilian journal Lua Nova has released a special edition titled Hemisfério em Transformação. The Portuguese-language publication includes chapters by Philip Brenner, SIS; Eric Hershberg, CLALS/SPA; and Carlos Portales, WCL. Full-text versions of these articles are available at the link above.

Research Fellow Héctor Silva has published a working paper titled “The United States and Central America’s Northern Tier: The Ongoing Disconnect,” with the Inter-American Dialogue. The working paper offers a review of U.S. security cooperation with the nations of Guatemala, Honduras, and El Salvador.

As part of the Religion and Violence Project, CLALS has released two working papers:

“Central American Migrants in Mexico: Implications for U.S. Security and Immigration Policy”

Authored by Amelia-Frank Vitale, this working paper describes how members of the Catholic Church are stepping in to protect and advocate on behalf of Central American migrants attempting the hazardous trek through Mexico. The full-text PDF is available here.

“Las iglesias ante las violencias en Latinoamérica: Modelos y experiencias de paz en contextos de conflicto y violencia”

Authored by Claudia Dary Fuentes, this working paper is a compilation of the issues and key points discussed during a seminar on the role of Christian churches in facing violence in Central America, Colombia, and Mexico. The full-text PDF is available here.

The Republicans’ Latino Problem and How it Can be Fixed

Friday, March 7, 2014
10:00 AM – 1:00 PM
SIS Abramson Family Founders Room

Latino support of Republican candidates has been dwindling since George W. Bush garnered 40% of the Latino vote in 2004. Recent election results in the U.S. demonstrate that the Republican Party confronts a significant challenge given the growing importance of Latinos in the American electorate. Please join us to discuss the problems the Party faces and possible strategies to connect with this growing demographic.

Panel 1: 10:00 AM – 11:15 AM
The Main Issues: Complicating Latino Support of the Republican Party
Jason Casellas, University of Houston
Ali Valenzuela, Princeton University
Sylvia Manzano, Latino Decisions
Moderator: Eric Hershberg, American University

Coffee Break: 11:15 – 11:45

Panel 2: 11:45 AM – 1:00 PM
Political Strategies to Connect the Republican Party with Latino Voters
David Winston, The Winston Group
Leslie Sanchez, Political Analyst
Glen Bolger, Public Opinion Strategies
Moderator: Jordan Fabian, Univision

For more information, please contact Inés Luengo de Krom at luengode@american.edu or 202-885-6178

The U.S. Immigration Debate: Legalization or Citizenship? (3/3) - Despite rhetoric that places the blame on the President’s alleged unwillingness to implement certain unspecified laws, the immediate concern for House Republicans who have stalled the immigration reform debate is not one of substance but of timing.

Social Exclusion and Societal Violence: The Household Dimension (3/6) - Ongoing research in Central America increasingly points to citizens’ exclusion from basic markets, especially the workforce that receives certain social guarantees, as the cause of societal violence in the region.
CALL FOR PROPOSALS

Tinker Field Research Grants – Request for Proposals

Tinker Field Research Grants are awarded by the Center for Latin American and Latino Studies to American University graduate students to support preliminary field research in Spanish and Portuguese-speaking Latin American and Caribbean countries (excluding Puerto Rico). Grants are intended to provide the opportunity to develop research projects and conduct hands-on field research for the first time. Awards are not intended for advanced research.

Tinker grants primarily cover travel expenses for short (three weeks to four months) periods of investigation in Latin America. Travel should be concluded by September 30, 2014. Priority is given to PhD candidates for pre-dissertation exploratory research, but grants will be allocated to students pursuing Master’s and other graduate degrees for thesis or preparation for a major research paper. To apply, please submit the following:

The application cover sheet – available at http://www.american.edu/clals/tinker-field-research-grants.cfm
A 1500 word (maximum) summary of the project, including the empirical issue(s) to be studied and its significance; the theoretical background to the research; an outline of key sources to be consulted; and an explanation for the choice of field site(s) and institutional affiliation
A one-page account of how the proposed research fits within your program of study at American University, and an explanation of your preparation for the study (including language training)
An itemized budget estimating your travel and in-field expenses: Note that at least 75% of the funds requested (and awarded) must go toward travel expenses, including flights to and from the country, as well as in-country travel (buses, taxis, domestic flights, etc)
A C.V. of no more than two pages, indicating educational achievements, degree plans, research and study abroad experience, language expertise and relevant work experience
One letter of recommendation, speaking directly to the quality of the proposal and its relevance to your degree program

The selection committee will consist of AU faculty drawn from across Schools and Colleges on campus. Although all of the reviewers have extensive experience conducting research in the region, remember that they may not be well-versed in jargon particular to any discipline. Thus, while doctoral candidates in particular should make clear how their proposed research is situated within disciplinary debates and methodological approaches, it is important to present your work in ways that a multi-disciplinary committee will find intelligible.

All application materials should be sent as a single attachment in one email (letters of recommendation may be sent separately) to Ines Luengo de Krom, Operations Administrator, AU Center for Latin American and Latino Studies, at luengode@american.edu. The subject line should read: “LAST NAME - Tinker Field Grant Application”, and the attached file should be labeled as “Last Name _Tinker_Application.” Applications must be received by Monday, March 17, 2014 at 5pm. All grantees must attend a brief orientation session with Center staff prior to their research trip. If you have further questions, please contact Rob Albro at albro@american.edu or 202-885-6174.
