UNACCOMPANIED MIGRANT CHILDREN FROM CENTRAL AMERICA:

context, causes, & advocacy responses

Monday, September 22, 2014
3:00-4:30 PM
Skadden New York
4 Times Square

Join researchers from American University for an overview of factors driving the migration of unaccompanied minors from Central America, with particular attention to those factors that could be used as the basis for seeking deportation relief.

The presentation is part of a Ford Foundation-supported initiative by AU’s Center for Latin American & Latino Studies (CLALS) to inform advocates engaged in protecting the rights and welfare of these children and their families. In this effort, CLALS has partnered with The Door, a NYC-based youth development agency at the forefront of advocating for unaccompanied migrant children in the metropolitan area.

Please RSVP to Inés Luengo de Krom at luengode@american.edu by September 17.
