Access to Honors Capstone Work

All Honors capstone work is included in digital form in the American University Library Archives, making it accessible to the American University community and outside researchers. Each student retains copyright of the work.

With the author's permission, each Honors capstone becomes accessible to the AU Research Commons, which is the repository for the scholarly works that are produced by the AU community. This makes Honors capstone work, along with other unique AU content, more widely accessible.

We encourage all graduating students to grant permission for their capstone work to be included in this publicly available, full-text searchable database. Note: Once permission is granted, Capstone work can be removed at a later date, for any reason, at the author's request.

Please read the following carefully and, to indicate your permission, sign your full name:

While I retain copyright of my Capstone work, I grant American University permission to have this work displayed, copied, distributed (in print, electronic, and/or any digital medium, including in the AU Research Commons), and incorporated in whole or in part into derivative works for educational, research, archival, promotional, and other purposes consistent with the mission of American University.
