Eco-Friendly in the Office:

Cleaning Products

Cleaning products that work as well as the leading brand AND are eco-friendly...who would have thought that the combination could really exist?!

- 20 Mule Team Borax It's really cheap, has no chemicals, and makes surfaces sparkle like there's no tomorrow. It is a tad messy, but worth it.
- Baking Soda and Vinegar These ingredients are found in most households, are effective in cleaning, and are quite inexpensive. Downsides Adding baking soda to a wet sponge is messy and it takes a few tries to remove stains. Vinegar smells.
- Simple Green Not only do all the review sites I checked out love this product, I have personally had several recommendations from friends and swear by it myself. They have something for everything you could ever want to clean and sanitize from floors and surfaces to automobiles and fences. Not only are the Simple Green products eco-friendly and affordable, they actually work. The same can not be said for the widely advertised Seventh Generation (no offense to those who use their products).

Eco-Friendly in the Home:

Cold and Flu Season

Try these natural remedies when you catch a winter cold:

- Cough Add 3 tablespoons of dried thyme to a pint of boiling water. Let it cool and then add 1 cup of honey. Take 1 teaspoon every hour as needed.
- Runny Nose Add garlic to your meals or boil water with eucalyptus oil added. Stand over the mixture and breathe in.
- Sore Throat Lots of tea and gargling with salt.
- Headache Eating 2 cups of carrots every day will actually reduce your number of headaches by 70%.
- Trouble Sleeping Try celery, chamomile tea, or lavender.
- Preventing a Cold Good ol' vitamin C: orange juice, grapefruit juice, peaches, and red peppers.

Fact Check

The number of pounds of chemicals that the institutional cleaning industry uses each year?

5 billion.
