Students will successfully write and defend a proposal for their dissertation. Measure Type: Written Assignment	Students will successfully defend a dissertation proposal within six months of passing the second of their two written comprehensive exams.	All faculty who teach in the three programs meet with the SPA Director of Ph.D. Programs and three departmental coordinators to assess student progress each June. This group discusses each student's progress holistically, evaluating whether he or she is making sufficient progress toward completion of the degree. The departmental coordinators work with the director to formulate a letter for each student that outlines the key conclusions from this meeting. For students who are deemed to be making adequate progress, the letter is designed to give feedback to help them continue to make progress and ultimately graduate. For students who are deemed to be making inadequate progress, the letter identifies explicitly the targets that the student must reach by the next review cycle in order to continue in the program.	Yes

Learning Outcome: Writing Skills
