

45th Washington Asia Forum

Asia Council of American University

Japans Changing Policies on Emerging Issues in North Korea

Sachio Nakato

Utsunomiya University, Japan

Tuesday

March 18, 2003

5:30p.m.

Ward 302

Sachio Nakato is an assistant professor in the Department of International Studies at Utsunomiya University in Japan. He received his B.S. in Political Science from State University of New York. He earned his M.A. through the AU-Ritsumeikan dual degree program and Ph.D. in International Relations from Ritsumeikan University, Japan. His research interests include the political economy of U.S.-Japan trade conflicts and international relations in Northeast Asia. His publications include The New Stage of U.S.-North Korea Relations (2002) and The Political Economy of U.S.-Japan Trade Frictions (forthcoming 2003). He is currently a visiting scholar here at AU conducting research on Korea-Japan relations.

For further information, contact Asia Council Chair, Professor Quansheng Zhao or Aria Bailey (202-885-1760)

