

60th Washington Asia Forum

Center for Asian Studies of American University

“Conceptualizing Northeast Asia’s Economic Integration Process”

Vinod Aggarwal
University of California, Berkeley

Wednesday
December 10, 2003

2:30pm

Hughes Hall 102

Vinod Aggarwal is Professor in the Department of Political Science, and Director of the Berkeley Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation Study Center (BASC) at UC, Berkeley. Currently, he is a Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars. His authored books include Liberal Protectionism, Debt Games, and Le Renseignement Stratégique d'Entreprise. Professor Aggarwal has also published over 50 articles and book chapters on the politics of trade and finance. His current research examines comparative regionalism in Europe, North America, and Asia with a focus on implications for the international system and multinational corporations. He received his B.A. from the University of Michigan and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Stanford University.

For further information, contact the Director of the Center for Asian Studies, Professor Quansheng Zhao or Aria Bailey (202-885-1760)