The Center for Environmental Policy aims to improve the nation's ability to address environmental challenges through effective governance.

William K. Reilly Awards for Environmental Governance and Leadership Sponsorship Opportunities

The Center for Environmental Policy (Center) at American University's School of Public Affairs invites corporate, philanthropic, and non-profit organizations and individuals to join as event sponsors of the William K. Reilly Awards for Environmental Governance and Leadership to be held on March 30, 2017, at American University in Washington, DC. At this annual event, the Center recognizes professionals who have made significant contributions towards advancing environmental protection and conservation, awards graduate student scholarships, and honors one of the most respected environmental leaders in the nation, William K. Reilly. For information about past events, award winners and scholarship winners, please visit the Center's website at www.american.edu/spa/cep.

About the Center for Environmental Policy and the William K. Reilly Fund for Environmental Governance and Leadership

The mission of the Center for Environmental Policy at American University's School of Public Affairs is to evaluate and improve the capacity for environmental governance in the United States. This encompasses all of the ways in which institutions and groups work together to anticipate, manage and resolve issues related to the state of the natural environment. The Center launched the William K. Reilly Awards for Environmental Governance and Leadership to recognize professionals in the environment and energy fields who demonstrate qualities of leadership, innovation, engagement of diverse interests, effective problem solving and support for future generations of environmental leaders.
