Meeting Educational Challenges of Culturally and Linguistically Diverse Students through Professional Development, Student Community Engagement, and Research

Led by Anne H. Charity Hudley and Christine Mallinson

Saturday, January 26, 2013
9am—2pm
Butler Boardroom, Butler Pavilion, 6th Floor

Registration Deadline: January 21, 2013

Payment Information:
Advance: $20
Special $10 rate for students

Regular: $25
Special $15 rate for students

This workshop takes an interactive approach to sharing sociolinguistic research and professional development that helps K-16 educators meet the needs of culturally and linguistically diverse students.

For more information, go to www.american.edu/cas/tesol/news/workshop.cfm

To register, visit http://www.american.edu/cas/tesol/register

Registration begins January 3, 2013

Anne H. Charity Hudley is an associate professor of education, English, and linguistics and the William and Mary Professor of Community Studies at the College of William and Mary.

Christine Mallinson is an associate professor in the Language, Literacy, and Culture Program and an affiliate associate professor in the Gender and Women's Studies Program at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County.

Co-sponsored by the Center for Applied Linguistics