Stress Driven by Economic Insecurity and Food Abundance Blamed for Obesity

"When I began to look into the issue of obesity, I realized that the most overweight are the least privileged members of society. And amongst those, it tended to be minorities. And amongst minorities it tended to be women. It was those people who possessed the least control over their lives, and thus suffer the greatest insecurity and stress," said Jon Wisman, professor of economics to eMaxHealth.com about his research suggesting economic insecurity leads to obesity. More than 60 outlets, including Asia News International, published articles about the research. (1/21, 1/22)

Circles, Stains at AU Museum

Washington Jewish Week featured Julie Linowes: STAIN, Marisa Baumgartner: Grande Avenues, and Nicole Cohen: Driving in Circles, three of the six exhibits at the American University Museum at the Katzen Arts Center. Op-Ed/Editorial

Hu Jintao's Visit Ends Any Dreams of the US and China Sharing the World Stage

Amitav Acharya, professor of international relations, wrote an editorial for Jakarta Globe about Chinese President Hu Jintao's visit to the United States and the U.S.-China summit. "While the unipolar moment in international relations is over, it will not be replaced by a China-U.S. duopoly, at least not an effective one that addresses the challenges of our time," he wrote. (1/25)

Quotes

Product Placement, Turned Inside Out

Patricia Aufderheide, director of the Center for Social Media, explained to the New York Times why high level officials of large corporations participate in interviews with documentary filmmakers, who typically put said officials on the hot seat. "If they're not there, it looks like an admission of guilt," she said. "And at least if they show up they have a chance to get their side of the story—their spin—across." (1/22)

How Challenger Brought NASA Down to Earth

"When the shuttle turned out to be not what we thought it was, all those downstream visions began to crumble," said Howard McCurdy, professor of public administration, to USA Today about the 25th anniversary of the Challenger explosion. "The business model collapsed, and it wasn't just the business model for shuttle, it was the business model for shuttle, station, Mars, [and] the moon. It was like a corporation going down." (1/26)

Olbermann's Abrupt Exit: What Happened?

Jane Hall, associate professor of communication, appeared on CNN's Reliable Sources to discuss Keith Olbermann's resignation from MSNBC. "I think it's regrettable that his voice is lost because [Olbermann and MSNBC] were the anti-Fox. That's what he characterized himself as," said Hall. (1/23)

Accused Tucson Shooter's Day in Court

"Raise the insanity defense from day one, simply with the hope of saving the defendant's life once it comes to the sentencing part of the proceedings," is the strategy Ira Robbins, professor of law, suggested on NBC Nightly News for accused Tucson gunman Jared Loughner's defense team. More than 15 additional NBC affiliate stations re-aired the segment. (1/23)
